

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

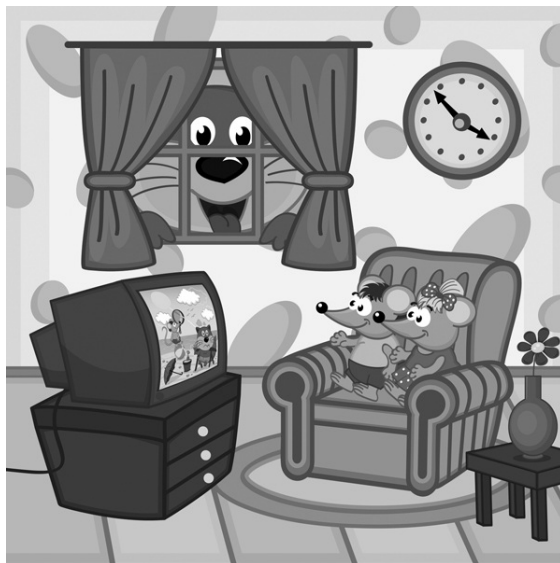

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

When you wish upon a star!

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe issues relating to money, in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about fame and work.
- I can talk about what was done.
- I can speculate about the past.

Ask your partner:

- What was the last animated film you watched?
- What are the stages of creating an animated movie?

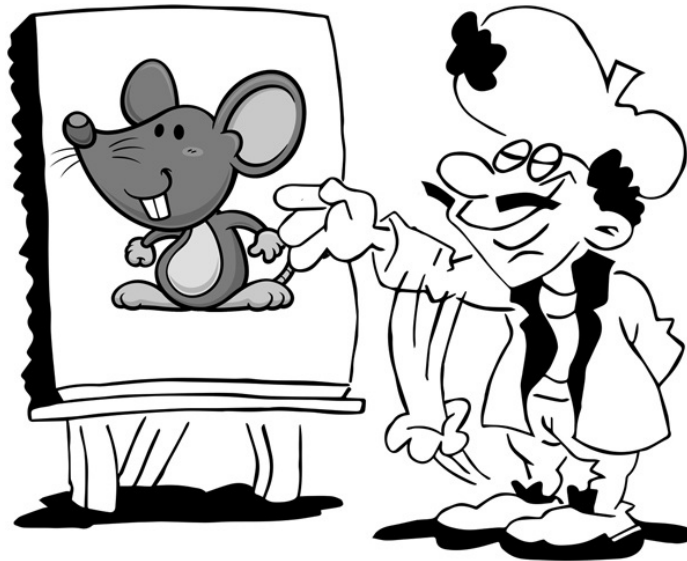

Let's Explore!

Walt Disney created the legendary Mickey Mouse!

* Walt Disney recorded the voice of "Mickey Mouse" himself.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Most people around the world recognize the names Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, and Goofy. All of these characters were created by artists and animators working under the supervision of one man, media magnate Walt Disney.

Walt Disney was raised in Kansas, where his father was a distributor for a local newspaper. From an early age, Walt and his brother were required to deliver newspapers, morning and night. This arduous delivery route must have been a factor in developing the tremendous work ethic that would mark Disney's career.

In the 1930s, the up-and-coming Disney studios gained prominence with the creation of Mickey Mouse. Although Walt Disney gets most of the credit, he could not have created Mickey on his own. An animated film requires the input of storyboard artists, voice actors and a postproduction team, among others. Without their breakthrough with Mickey Mouse, Disney Studios might never have gone on to create beloved characters such as Donald Duck and Goofy.

Near the end of his life, headlines were printed about Disney's wish to be cryogenically frozen. It was openly insinuated that his body may have been stored beneath the Pirates of the Caribbean ride at Disneyland. These libelous claims were proved to be urban legend. In fact, Disney's remains were cremated and laid to rest in California.

Let's Practice!

Let's talk about fame and work.

Instructions: Match the sentences in Column A to the sentences in Column B.

COLUMN A

1. magnate
2. distributor
3. postproduction
4. voice actor
5. up-and-coming
6. libelous
7. urban legend
8. credit

COLUMN B

- a. a person who provides a voice for an animated character.
- b. false or damaging.
- c. someone who is improving and who is likely to become successful.
- d. work done on a film after the film has taken place.
- e. an untrue story which many people believe.
- f. a person who provides goods to customers.
- g. a wealthy and influential person.
- h. acknowledgment or praise.

Let's Practice!

What could have been done?

Instructions: Use the phrases from the Word Bank to correctly complete the sentences. Use capital letters where necessary.

Word Bank

Might they have finished sooner / must have been a factor / might have been stored / could not have created Mickey / might never have gone on to create

1. This arduous delivery route _____ in developing the tremendous work ethic that would mark Disney's career. Although Walt Disney gets most of the credit, he _____ on his own.
2. Without their breakthrough with Mickey Mouse, Disney Studios _____ beloved characters such as Donald Duck and Goofy.
3. It was openly insinuated that his body _____ beneath the Pirates of the Caribbean ride at Disneyland.
4. _____ if they'd had more animators?

Extension Activity

Create a comic strip. Imagine that it is being converted into an animated film by performing the dialogue for each character.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Create an imaginary cartoon character.
- Create five small drawings depicting an action sequence involving your character.
- Create a short dialogue for each drawing.
- Perform this dialogue out loud!

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I storyboard a short animation.

☐ ☐

I create a dialogue for my characters.

☐ ☐

I practice each sentence with my partner.

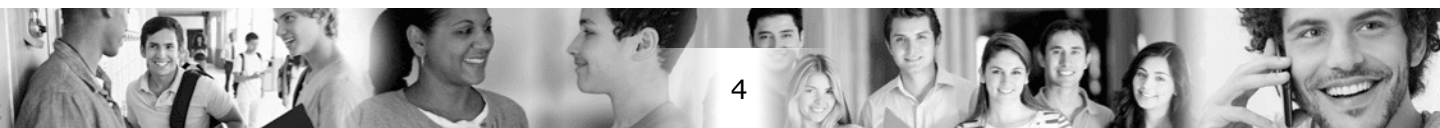

☐ ☐

I perform the entire dialogue out loud.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- magnate (noun): a wealthy and influential person
e.g. Media magnate Walt Disney created Mickey Mouse.
- distributor (noun): a person who provides goods to consumers
e.g. His father was a distributor for a local newspaper.
- animator (noun): a person who creates animated movies or cartoons
e.g. In fact, Goofy and Mickey were created by animators working in the studio.
- postproduction (adjective): work done on a film after filming has taken place e.g. The postproduction team will work out the details.
- voice actor (noun): a person who provides a voice for an animated character
e.g. They hired voice actors to bring Mickey and Goofy to life.
- storyboard artist (noun): a person who visualizes and sketches the outline of a story before it is created e.g. The storyboard artist laid out the plan that the animators would follow.
- up-and-coming (adjective): describes someone who is improving and who is likely to become successful e.g. In the 1930s, the up-and-coming Disney studios gained prominence with the creation of Mickey Mouse.
- libelous (adjective): false or damaging e.g. These libelous claims were proven to be urban legend.
- urban legend (noun): an untrue story which many people believe e.g. Disney's wish to be cryonically frozen was an urban legend.
- credit (noun): acknowledgement or praise
e.g. Although Walt Disney gets most of the credit, he could not have created Mickey on his own.

Learning Points

The Simple Past Passive

You use an active structure when you want the 'doer' of the action to be the subject.
You use a passive structure when you want the 'receiver' of the action to be the subject.

Active sentence = Artists and animators (subject) created all of these characters (object).

Passive sentence = All of these characters (subject) were created by artists and animators (agent).

It is not necessary to mention the object in a passive sentence.

You often choose the passive form when you want to talk about an action but are not so interested in saying who or what does/did it. Passives without agents (the doers) are common in biographies.

You make the passive form of a verb by using tenses of the be verb followed by the past participle.

Subject	Was/Were	Past Participle
Walt Disney	was	raised	in Kansas.
Walt and his brother	were	required	to deliver newspapers.

Examples:

- Near the end of his life, headlines were printed about Disney's wish to be cryogenically frozen.
- It was openly insinuated that his body may have been stored beneath the Pirates of the Caribbean ride at Disneyland.
- These libelous claims were proved to be urban legend.
- In fact, Disney's remains were cremated and laid to rest in California.

Learning Points

Speculation About the Past

You can use modals to talk about degrees of certainty and speculate about things in the past.

You use them to describe what is definite, probable, possible, or impossible from the speaker's point of view.

You can use must, may, might, and could to describe degrees of certainty.

You can use modals with the Present Perfect to talk about the possibility of a past event that is not clear in the present context.

Example:

This arduous delivery route must have been a factor in developing the tremendous work ethic that would mark Disney's career.

Look at the chart for the meanings of modals when speculating about the past:

Modal Phrase	Meaning
Must have	It is very likely.
May have Might have Could have	It is possible.

- May have has a slightly stronger meaning than might have or could have.
- You can add not to make a negative speculation (It may not have been true).

Examples:

- This arduous delivery route must have been a factor in developing the tremendous work ethic that would mark Disney's career.
- Although Walt Disney gets most of the credit, he could not have created Mickey on his own.
- Without their breakthrough with Mickey Mouse, Disney Studios might never have gone on to create beloved characters such as Donald Duck and Goofy.
- It was openly insinuated that his body may have been stored beneath the Pirates of the Caribbean ride at Disneyland.